HOW TONOPAH DID GET A WALLOPING

NOR DID MANHATTAN FARE ANY BETTER IN FIRST GAMES OF TOURNEY

And verily their did come from the south, even from Las Vegas and Bunkerville, great hordes, and they did wallop righteously them that were of the north, and they of the north round about Manhattan and Tonopah did swear vengeance and that same will be had in the high school gymnasium this evening.

Bunkerville and Tonopah were the first to engage yesterday afternoon. The hardy young sons of Lincoln county, very much larger, very much more matured and better conditioned put aside all traditions as to altitude effects and beat Tonopah by the uneven score of 54 to 14.

Bunkerville's team was well coached, and their faculty of lofting the ball just over the heads of our own boys was disastrous. Reynolds had no more chance to take the ball away from Lavitt, than Albert Gilbert had to climb up on the shoulders of Waite to grab an occasional ball from out of the air. The game was marred by numerous fouls by Bunkerville.

Waite proved the point getter for Bunkerville, with C. Lavitt a close second. For Tonopah, Pollard scored three of the five field goals, and one free goal.

The second game left Manhattan on the short end of a 44 to 15 score. Las Vegas knew a better game, and were much bigger boys. Westlake, a tiny southpaw, is a whirlwind and to him Vegas is indebted for 6 field goals and 10 free goals. Alvan Humphrey for Manhattan proved a consistent player, and Mudgett's work also deserves mention.

This evening at 8 o'clock Tonopah and Manhattan will each try to vanquish the opponent the other failed with yesterday.

The games have proved exceedingly interesting and a large group of rooters attended yesterday. Much additional space is being provided for this evening's crowd.

St. Ross proved an excellent referee, handling the teams with absolute authority, and in all fairness. Harold Stotesburg officiated as referee.

TONOPAH BACK FROM BABOONVILLE

variety. Most innocuous of all, however, are the anacondas. They grow eighteen feet long and then stop and become fat. They won't bite unless they are provoked, but they have an uncomfortable habit of hugging a buffalo or a human being to death on the slightest provocation.

As to the monkeys and parrots, they have a monkey and a parrot time scrapping and jabbering. The only time that Jack really was afraid in darkest Africa was when he wounded a dog faced baboon. These creatures have a habit of sending out the "S. O. S." and the one he winged did so in this instance and he had a mighty close call for his life. There are oodles of elephants in his township. In fact, the natives principally subsist, when they are not working for his company, by sending out ivory, palm oil and rubber.

The earliest inhabitants are a very tractable lot of people. They practice great economy in the sartorial art, clothing themselves over parts of their exterior in bark. They are amenable to kindness and will do anything except over exert themselves. Jack says that he couldn't do that either, and that is why he dropped out of the country for a time. A man can come in from the temperate zone and be a regular Tonopah real estate hustler like Art Keenan for a year or less, but he gets loggy. It somehow gets on a man to wake up at midnight and find the thermometer registering 72, while it drops back to 72 at sunrise and only rises to 72 at noon, while it chills off to 72 at sunset and it does this 365 days in the year.

The camp is only two degrees from the equator and it has an altitude of 2,000 feet, which gives it clearance from the dreaded jungle fever which prevails down along the Congo. In fact, the climate is pronounced by Mr. Burger to be just right, only a trifle monotonous.

The country is densely forested, there being several species of very valuable hardwood, but it is impossible to market it to advantage. The undergrowth is so dense that prospecting is impossible. The company simply works its placers and its pockets, the latter occurring in schist and granite, while the real source of the gold, the quartz ledges that are supposed to exist, remain hidden and will so continue to remain until nature

CHANGE TAKES PLACE IN A BUSINESS FIRM

BEN ROTHOLTZ DISPOSES OF INTEREST AND GEORGE SOUTH-WORTH BUYS IN

Ben Rotholtz departed for Reno this morning, after having disposed of his interest in Rotholtz Brothers' store to his brother, Ed Rotholtz. At the same time an interest in the concern, which is incorporated, was taken by George Southworth.

Having also disposed of his residence and other property in Tonopah, Mr. Rotholtz will make Reno his permanent place of residence, where he will open a large stationery and tobacco store.

ELKS DEFEATED BY MOOSE LAST NIGHT

FIRST GAME OF INDOOR BASEBALL EVER PLAYED IN TONOPAH LIVELY CONTEST

The Moose proved their superiority over the Elks last evening when the first game of indoor baseball that Tonopah has seen was played in the Airdome. The final score was 17 to 9, but even these figures do not show the superiority of the Moose, inasmuch as three of the runs credited to the Elks were scored on a ball that was knocked up into the rafters and had to be retrieved by means of a step-ladder. To Will Brown is credited this sleight of bat work.

The lineup of the two teams was: Moose—Van Holberg, c; Steen, p; Prout, ss; Warming, 1b; Johns, 2b; Morris, 3b; Lyden, field.

Elks—Conover, c; Penn, p; W. Brown, 1b; Pike, 2b; Elknor, 3b; Dynan, ss; Peck, field.

Professor Bennet officiated as referee. His decisions were a number of times disputed by Captain Conover, but Bennet, who is an All-American and who knows every variety of the athletic sport from the ground up, declined to recede from his rulings. These arguments gave the big crowd almost as much cause for acclamation as the game itself. The Airdome was packed and it was all for sweet charity. The Elks turned their share of the profits over for the betterment of the children's playground, while the Moose will dedicate theirs to the splendid cause of Mooseheart. It is expected that other games will follow and the only regret is that there is not an even larger auditorium than the spacious Airdome, for the sport is bound to become popular.

ONE SPECTATOR'S VERSION

(By W. F. R.)

Captain Conover of the Elks was heard to remark before the opening of the game last evening that there were "only two great players in baseball. The other one was Cobb," which may have been true but it looked for a while last night that "soup would be about as far as the Elks would get on the indoor baseball menu," as it appeared that some one had spread a liberal supply of glue on the feet of the glass-armed players.

scrapes the landscape bare like she did in Nevada.

Sometimes, in the course of conversation, Mr. Burger lets slip a word sation sounds like a cross between a sneeze and a chuckle. He explains this by saying that for the past three years he has been talking practically nothing but Ksybella, which is hard, and Bangala, which is soft. The combination of the two is rather straining on the jaw and the nasal passages.

J. REED was an arrival this morning from Reno.

B. T. ASHLEY was a passenger this morning for Ludlow, Cal.

W. W. BOOTH and wife returned this morning from Reno, where Mr. Booth attended the press association meeting.

NEVADA A GAME RESERVE

Sportsmen of the northern part of the state are taking action in regard to procuring elk from the federal game reserves in Wyoming. The latest proposal is to make the entire state a game preserve and an ordinance protecting game was recently passed by Washoe county commissioners, which will be applicable to every county of the state and a movement is on foot to get every board of the state to take favorable action in regard to the law.

It looked as though the Amalgamated Union of South African Hoodoos was in session for work in the thirty-third degree, as the Elksites stood around and whistled for help while Conover explained the fine points of the game to Umpire Bennett, and were so weak they couldn't lift a glass of beer if it had been all foam. They ran bases like pall-bearers at a funeral and allowed the frostbitten Moose to run bases until their necks were long with thirst. The best thing the Elks did was to remember their turn at bat.

With the Elks it was not a case of "we need this one," but of "we need all we can get." While the Moose struggled, juggled and booted the ball as though they loved it.

The Moose were bad enough, as all they had was a bat and a prayer when they were at bat, but the Elks had their fins sewed up until they couldn't hold a crazy quilt if it was tied around their necks.

Both teams were certainly there when it came to head work. A wooden Indian in front of a cigar store, could think more in a minute than they did during the game. I am afraid if a surgeon was to operate on their skulls he would have to use diamond edged tools.

All in all it was the best evening enjoyed by sport fans in Tonopah in many months. Let's have more games and keep the ball a rolling. The crowd last evening demonstrated that Tonopah people are strong for this form of sport and the captains of both teams are to be congratulated on the wonderful success of their teams and for the unlimited pleasure they afforded the spectators.

Indoor baseball has come to stay. Let's keep it by hearing from the other fraternal orders of Tonopah.

AMUSEMENTS

BUTLER THEATER

The feature at the Butler tonight will be a five-part Shubert production entitled "Bought;" a sensational drama of Wall street speculation, with Frederick Lewis and Ethel Gray Terry in the leading roles. Terse, but curiosity-provoking is the title. Who or what is bought? And why? And the price paid? Horace Frambers, an impecunious literary man receives the following offer: Helen Talbot, daughter of a rich financier, has trusted her lover not wisely, but too well. She is about to become a mother. Her lover went down on the "Titanic." If Frambers will marry Helen Talbot and save her name he will receive $10,000 and a position in Mr. Talbot's office. He does so; the child dies. Mr. Talbot gradually trusts and likes Frambers; but Helen despises her bought husband and intrigues with other men. So Frambers resigns his position and pays her back the $10,000; deserts her and tells her to get a divorce. Talbot's business is failing, and Frambers helps him recover it. Then Frambers returns to his room to die, as he thinks, but when he recovers from his illness he finds Helen by his side. She loves him and they are made happy by a happiness that has not been bought. Preliminary reel, Pathe Weekly. Tomorrow, Wm. Farnum in "A Soldier's Oath," and a Sidney Drew comedy.
